HEADQUARTERS 8TH INFANTRY DIVISION
Office of the Commanding General

TO THE OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE 8TH INFANTRY DIVISION:

The events portrayed in this book are part of a history making move undertaken by this Division - Operation GYROSCOPE.

From the day I assumed command to the present time I have been singularly impressed by the enthusiasm and professional capability of all ranks. The difficult and exacting program which preceded the move to Germany was accepted as a challenge to be met and overcome.

The success which crowned your efforts was readily apparent long before the first trainload departed from Fort Carson.

My sincere thanks and congratulations are extended to every one of you - for the 8th Infantry Division continued to prove its worth as a team in this mission as in so many past.

Thomas Morgan Watlington was born in San Antonio, Texas, May 22, 1904. He attended high school in Oklahoma City, Denver and Cheyenne, and was graduated from high school in Cheyenne, Wyoming in 1922, and attended the University of Wyoming for one year. He then entered the United States Military Academy from which he was graduated June 14, 1927, commissioned a second lieutenant of field Artillery and assigned with the Sixth Field Artillery at Fort Hoyle, Maryland.

In September 1930, General Watlington joined the Second Field Artillery in the Panama Canal Zone. In July 1932, he entered the Field Artillery School, from which he was graduated a year later. He then was assigned to the First Field Artillery at Fort Sill, and in May 1934, was transferred to the 18th Field Artillery there.

General Watlington, in August 1934, was appointed an English instructor at the United States Military Academy. From October 1939 to April 1941, he served with the 17th Field Artillery Regiment at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. He then was named a member of the Training Literature Board of the Field Artillery School at Fort Sill and in July 1942, became a tactics instructor.

From November 1942 to February 1943, General Watlington attended the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and upon graduation resumed his position as a tactics instructor at the Field Artillery School. In July 1943, he was appointed chief of the Zone of Interior Branch, Plans Division, of the Army Service Forces, Washington, D. C. In January 1944, he became assistant artillery officer of the III Corps at Fort McPherson, Georgia.

General Watlington moved to the European theater as assistant artillery officer of the III Corps Artillery in August 1944. In July 1945, he became executive officer of the XVIII Airborne Corps Artillery at Camp Campbell, Kentucky. In November 1945, he was named execu-

Executive officer of the V Corps Artillery at Fort Jackson, South Carolina. In April 1946, he was appointed director of extension courses at the Armored School, Fort Knox, Kentucky.

In August 1947, General Watlington went to Korea as executive officer of the U.S. delegation to the U.S. - USSR Joint Commission. The following December, he was named assistant chief of staff for intelligence of the Army Forces in Korea, serving until January 1949.

General Watlington then was assigned to the Operations and Training Division of the Army General Staff. He entered the National War College in August 1949, graduated in June 1950, and was appointed a member of the Joint Strategic Plans Group in the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In May 1952 General Watlington was transferred to Korea as artillery commander of the Second Infantry Division. In December 1952, he commanded X Corps Artillery. Returning to the United States in July 1953, he was named the Assistant Commandant of the Artillery and Guided Missile School, Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

In August 1955, General Watlington reported for assignment to the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G3 (Operations), Washington, D. C. In November 1955, he was assigned as Commanding General, 8th Infantry Division, Fort Carson, Colorado, reporting in January 1956.

General Watlington was awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action near Gorze, France, October 28, 1944; the Legion of Merit for service as assistant artillery officer of the III Corps Artillery from November 1, 1944 to May 9, 1945, an Oak Leaf Cluster for service as commander of 2nd Division Artillery and X Corps Artillery in Korea, and the Bronze Star Medal for service to January 25, 1945, an Oak Leaf Cluster and V for action on Old Baldy, September 1952. He also has received the Air Medal, the Commendation Ribbon with Oak Leaf Cluster, the French Legion d'Honneur, rank of Officer; French Croix de Guerre with Palm; French Croix de Guerre for Foreign Theaters with Palm; and Republic of Korea Chung Mu with Gold Star.

Brigadier General
HAROLD K. JOHNSON
 Assistant Division Commander

Harold K. Johnson was born in Bowesmont, North Dakota, on February 22, 1912. He was graduated from high school in Grafton, North Dakota in 1929 and graduated from the United States Military Academy, West Point, New York, and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant of Infantry in 1933.

General Johnson's service includes a four year tour with the Third (Old Guard) Infantry Regiment at Fort Snelling, Minnesota; with the 28th Infantry at Fort Niagara, New York; and with the 57th Infantry, Philippine Scouts, Fort McKinley, Philippine Islands. He was in the Philippines at the outbreak of World War II and entered Bataan with the 57th Infantry (PS). Upon the fall of Bataan April 1942, he participated in the death march from Bataan, and later was imprisoned by the Japanese at Camp O'Donnell, Tarlac, P. I.; Camp Cabanatuan, P. I., Bilibid Prison Manila, P. I. He was moved to Japan in the winter of 1944-45 after the Americans had landed on Leyte. The ships on which he was moved were twice subjected to friendly air attack and damaged to the extent that they could not proceed. He was moved from Japan to Korea in April 1945 where he was liberated by the 7th Division when they made their occupational landing at Inchon on 8 September 1945. Upon his return to the United States he attended the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas and served for two years on the faculty thereafter. He attended the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Virginia from whence he was assigned to the 7th Infantry Regiment stationed at Fort Devons, Massachusetts. He took the first provisional infantry battalion to Korea in August 1950, where he joined the 1st Cavalry Division in the defense of the Pusan Perimeter, later participating in the pursuit of the north, the encounter with the Chinese in late 1950 and subsequent withdrawal to South Korea. During this period he commanded both the 5th and 8th Cavalry Regiments of the 1st Cavalry Division. In February, 1952, he became G-3 of the I Corps in Korea where he served until October 1952 as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, Operations, where he served as Chief, Joint War Plans Branch; Assistant to the Chief of Plans Division, G-3; and as Executive Officer, G-3, until his departure for Fort Carson, Colorado.

He has been Assistant Commanding General of the 8th Infantry Division since 25 January 1956.

Brigadier General
C. CORBURN SMITH, Jr.
Commanding General
Division Artillery

C. Coburn Smith, Jr., was born on the island of Luzon in the Philippines, June 20, 1907. He came to the United States in 1917 and attended high school, graduating in 1925.

General Smith was appointed to the USMA in 1927 and was commissioned a second lieutenant upon his graduation June 11, 1931. His first assignment was the 2nd Battalion, 76th Field Artillery in Hawaii.

In June 1932 he was assigned to the 8th Field Artillery Regiment. In October 1934 he was assigned to the 76th Field Artillery Battalion, where he served until 1936 when he was ordered to the Field Artillery School at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

Upon graduation in 1937, he was assigned as battery commander of Headquarters Battery, 3rd Field Artillery Brigade at Fort Lewis, Washington.

Various other important assignments follow and in June 1942 he was assigned to the G-3 section, Headquarters, II Corps and sent to the United Kingdom. He served on the amphibious training staff at Inverary, Scotland, and at Headquarters Command, Allied Forces Headquarters.

In September 1943, he landed at Salerno Beachhead on D-Day to establish army headquarters ashore. He served as Fifth Army headquarters commandant until December 1944 when he became headquarters commandant for the 15th Army Group in Italy. In June 1945, he went to the U. S. Forces, Austria and established headquarters in Salzburg and later in Vienna.

He returned to the United States in March 1947 and in August 1949, he was named aide to the commanding general of U. S. Army Field Forces at Fort Monroe, Virginia.

After attending the Army War College and serving in the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2, Department of the Army, he was ordered to the Far East Command in July 1952 where he served as assistant artillery officer and later as executive officer of X Corps Artillery.

From April to June 1953, he served temporarily as assistant chief of staff for administration in Headquarters, 8th Army, then took command of the 3rd Division Artillery.

In late October 1953, he came back to the United States and served on the staff and faculty of the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., until he became commanding officer of 8th Division Artillery on February 6, 1956.

History 8th Infantry Division

The 8th Infantry Division has seen active duty three times since it was organized in January, 1918. It took part in the occupation of Germany after World War I. In 1944-45 it fought from Normandy to northern Germany by way of the Crozon Peninsula, the Hurtgen Forest and the Rhine. From August, 1950, until its transfer to Fort Carson, Colorado in June, 1954, it was an Infantry Replacement Training Division stationed at Fort Jackson, S. C.

The 8th was authorized at Camp Fremont, Palo Alto, Calif., in January, 1918. From the namesake of that station, the explorer and soldier John Fremont (who opened up the Oregon Trail), the division took its first nickname—"Pathfinder". Years later the name "Golden Arrow" was adopted because of the arrow which pierces a silver figure "8" in the division insignia.

In September, 1918, the division left California for France, but the armistice was signed before it reached Europe. One unit of the division, the 8th Regiment, was made part of the Army of Occupation. The remaining elements of the division were returned to the United States, and in February, 1919, the division disbanded. In 1923, it was reconstituted as an inactive unit.

In the summer of 1940, when the German drive in Europe had proved successful, the British had been evacuated at Dunkirk, and Norway and Denmark had been seized, the 8th again was called to active status as part of the American rearmament force. In July, 1940, the division was ordered to duty at Camp Jackson, S. C. (A week later Camp Jackson became Fort Jackson). The reactivated division included the 13th, 28th and 34th Infantry Regiments. In November, the 34th was replaced by the 121st Infantry.

From 1940 to 1943, the division remained in the United States, concerned with security duty and with bringing its training to the hard edge the impending commitment to combat demanded. In the fall of 1941, it took part in the Carolina maneuvers. For a year in 1942-43, it trained as a motorized infantry division by participating in the Tennessee and Arizona desert maneuvers. During the latter period, the division was redesignated a standard infantry division. For six weeks during the winter of 1942, the 8th patrolled the Atlantic coast from North Carolina to the Florida Keys.

Late in November, 1943, the 8th moved into the Camp Kilmer staging area, and in December it sailed in convoy to Belfast, North Ireland. Headquarters were established at Omagh, County Tyrone.

Training was resumed in Ireland. This time the emphasis was on small-unit tactics and night-fighting. On July 1, 1944, six and one-half months after it had arrived in the United Kingdom, the 8th sailed for the European continent. It landed at Omaha Beach on the Normandy coast on the fourth, 28 days after the invasion. The 8th assembled, moved through the 82nd Airborne Division positions, and took over the center of the VIII Corps front. On the morning of July 8, the division jumped off southward toward La Haye du Puits, and for the first time in its history, the 8th attacked in an all-division effort.

On July 14, it reached the north bank of the Ay river, and the objective was taken. On July 27, the division drove through the Ay river line, opening a hole for the 79th and 90th Divisions, which broke east and west with armor and began the lightning drives that were to swoop past Paris to Germany. It was the beginning of the German Seventh Army's mass retreat. The 8th followed southward as far as Rennes.

In mid-August, the division moved by truck to Brest in the extreme west of France, the second largest port in the country. The port was being held by an estimated 50,000 German troops under Lt. Gen. Hermann Bernhard Ramcke, the man who had led the German airborne invasion of Crete. The 8th took the central front in an attack on the city. Early in September, the division was withdrawn to clear the Crozon Peninsula, adjacent to Brest. At first, violent resistance and counter-attack were met. But by the 17th, the shaft of the peninsula had fallen. Immediately afterward, General Ramcke who had fled to Crozon after Brest was taken, surrendered to the 8th Division.

It was here that the words were spoken which were to become the division's motto. Ramcke was in a dugout. His staff brought the 8th's assistant commander, Brig. Gen. Charles D. W. Canham, down the concrete stairway to the underground headquarters. Ramcke addressed Canham through his interpreter, "I am to surrender to you. Let me see your credentials." Pointing to the infantrymen crowding the dugout entrance, Canham replied, "These are my credentials."

Late in September, the 8th was ordered to the Ninth Army sector facing the West Wall. The movement across France was completed by October, and the division took over a 23-mile front along the Our River German Luxembourg boundary. The following month was relatively quiet. A rest camp was set up in Clerveaux, Luxembourg.

In mid-November, the division took up new positions southeast of Aachen, Germany, located at the point where Belgium, the Netherlands and Germany meet. The mission of the 121st Infantry was to break out of the Hurtgen Forest and seize high ground which controlled the German defenses west of Duren and the Cologne plain. Other elements of the division were put in support of the 121st. Very little progress was possible at first. Finally, on Nov. 27, a week after the opening of the drive, the 121st broke through the woods west of the forest, succeeding where three regiments of other divisions had failed. The city of Hurtgen fell shortly afterward to the 121st and 13th, backed up by tanks. Kleinhau fell next. The division cleared and consolidated the whole area. Throughout the German break-through at Ardennes, Belgium, just south of the 8th's position, the division held its ground and made limited advances.

On January 1, 1945, the enemy had cleared from west of the Roer river and the 8th took over a defensive mission and began regrouping and reequipping.

Early in February, the division was transferred to VII Corps control, and moved northward to the west bank of the Roer near Duren. On Feb. 23, the division began the difficult Roer crossing, broke into the industrial area between the Roer and the Rhine and took Duren and Erft Canal. In the meantime, the 13th Infantry had been attached temporarily to the 3rd Armored Division, and this team seized Cologne. On March 5, the 13th Infantry reached the Rhine, making it the first of the United States First Army troops to reach the river.

Action east of the Rhine began on March 29. The 8th was under Gen. Matthew Ridgway's XVIII Corps, which was to clear the Ruhr-Sieg pocket. The 8th crossed the Rhine in the south, near Bonn, and then cut back to the northwest. In early April, the German defenses began to crumble. The attack reached the Ruhr river and moved west again. Resistance ended on the morning of the 17th.

The division's final mission was to move north to Luneberg, near Hamburg, to move with the British Second Army. The attack was northeastward toward Lake Schwerin. It was to cut across the bottom of the Danish peninsula, and if carried far enough would have reached the Baltic Sea. The Germans were in no condition to fight. What resistance there was fell back, and on May 2, the 121st, followed closely by the 28th and elements of the 13th, made contact with the Russian armies of the north at Lake Schwerin. After that, the division spent most of its energy in handling the enormous numbers of prisoners. In a single day, 55,000 Germans were taken. Near Wobbelin, the division found and liberated 2,500 German and Polish political prisoners held in a concentration camp.

In 10 months of combat, the division had captured 316,187 prisoners. It flew battle streamers for the major parts it had taken in the campaigns of Normandy, Northern France, the Rhineland and Central Europe. A total of 13,293 men of the division had been killed, wounded or captured. Awards had included two Medals of Honor and five distinguished unit citations.

The division returned to the United States, where it was inactivated at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., in November, 1945.

In August, 1950, the 8th was activated for the third time in its history. Again stationed at Fort Jackson and placed under command of Brig. Gen. Frank C. McConnell, it was organized as an infantry training division. The 13th and 28th Regiments again made up a part of the division. The third regiment assigned was the 61st. The 28th, 43rd, 45th and 56th Field Artillery Battalions made up Division Artillery.

The basic training cycle was scheduled originally for 14 weeks. In July, 1951, it was changed to 16. Most new soldiers were assigned to the full 16-week cycle and became qualified infantrymen. Emphasis in the training was on all infantry weapons, from the automatic pistol to the 75mm recoilless rifle, and on small-unit battlefield tactics. Night-fighting and hand-to-hand combat both were emphasized increasingly on the basis of experience gained on Korean battlefields.

A limited number of men reporting to the division for training were assigned to an eight-week cycle, and subsequently were sent to such common specialist schools as the clerk-typist and automotive maintenance courses conducted by the 8th Division's Specialist Training Regiment.

In addition to the basic training given by the three regiments and Division Artillery (which gave training identical to that of the infantry regiments), the Specialist Training Regiment conducted clerks, drivers, mechanics, cooks, field wiremen's supply and radio specialist schools, and the Infantry Leaders' Course for non-commissioned officer training.

Maj. Gen. Harry J. Collins, wartime commander of the 42nd (Rainbow) Division, first took charge of the 8th in January, 1951. General McConnell subsequently became commander of Camp Gordon, Ga.

On February 1, 1952, General Collins left the 8th to take a new appointment as Senior Military Attache to the Soviet Union, relinquishing his command of the "Golden Arrow" Division to Maj. Gen. Whitfield P. Shepard, who had just returned from overseas duty as Deputy Chief of Staff, Headquarters, Far East Command. On January 31, 1952, General Shepard was reassigned as Chief of the U. S. Military Mission, Ankara, Turkey. He was succeeded as commanding general of the 8th Division by Brig. Gen. John A. Dabney, who, immediately prior to assignment at Fort Jackson, had served as a consultant to Anna Rosenberg, former Assistant Secretary of Defense. General Dabney continued to serve as commanding general until February 22, 1954; when he was succeeded by Maj. Gen. Riley F. Ennis.

On May 1, it was announced that the 8th Division would be reorganized at Camp Carson, Colo., on June 15, replacing the 31st Infantry "Dixie" Division commanded by Maj. Gen. Harry J. Collins, a Mississippi-Alabama National Guard unit whose colors and designation would be returned to state control on that date. Thus General Collins became Commanding General of the 8th Infantry "Golden Arrow" Division for the second time in his career.

The Commanding General at Fort Riley, Kansas, Maj. Gen. Thomas L. Harrold succeeded General Collins as commander of the 8th upon the latter's retirement in August, 1954.

After a brief period of command by Brig. Gen. Thomas L. Sherburne, Maj. Gen. John G. Van Houten arrived from an assignment in Germany to become commander of the 8th.

Late in 1954, and shortly after General Van Houten's arrival, the 8th Division was informed that in January 1955, it would be given an additional mission of conducting basic and advanced individual training.

In accomplishing its replacement training mission from January, 1955, to February, 1956, units of the 8th put 17,000 men through basic training and almost 7,000 through individual advanced training.

Principal training organizations of the division were the 13th and 28th Infantry Regiments and Division Artillery.

Trainees with the 8th received instruction by the "troop leader" system rather than the committee system. Troops were taught by officers and non-commissioned officers of their own unit and not by committees set up to teach particular subjects.

While training basic and advanced soldiers, the division retained its structure as a combat division.

In October, 1955, the 61st Infantry, only regiment in the division not assigned a replacement training mission, moved to Louisiana to take part in Exercise Sage Brush, largest joint Army-Air Force maneuver since World War II. The 61st returned to Fort Carson in December.

In November, Department of the Army named the 8th an Operation Gyroscope unit and announced the division would change places with the 9th Infantry Division in Germany.

Movement of the 8th was scheduled in three increments in August, September and October of 1956. It will occupy an area of South-Central Germany and become a component of the American Seventh Army.

The 8th said goodbye to its commander of 14 months, Maj. Gen. John G. Van Houten, in January. General Van Houten was named to command the Washington, D. C. Military District.

Replacing General Van Houten as commanding general of the division was Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Watlington. A veteran artillery officer, General Watlington came to the division from his post as deputy assistant chief of staff for research, requirements and special weapons.

Early in 1956, the division began preparations for its coming move to Germany. The replacement training mission was completed and cadre training was undertaken.

In February, March and April thousands of newcomers to the Army were poured into Fort Carson to be trained as the backbone of the division on its Operation Gyroscope move overseas.

On November 3, 1955 the Department of the Army announced that the 8th Infantry Division would become the second unit of division size to move to Germany under operation Gyroscope.

The 8th, which was stationed at Fort Carson, Colorado, at the time, was operating as a training division, training men as individual replacements for soldiers in overseas stations who were returning to the U. S. A.

Under Operation Gyroscope, the 8th was to become a TO&E organization, train its own men and, as a unit, replace the 9th Infantry Division which was then stationed in southern Germany with headquarters in Goeppingen.

Operation Gyroscope was a plan that was initiated after World War II to cut down the expense of replacing men for overseas duty.

Operation Gyroscope also presented several advantages to the men participating in it. Not the least of these was the opportunity for them to have their families, autos, and household goods shipped to their new stations with them.

The 8th was scheduled to move to Germany during the months of August, September and October of 1956. Much would have to be accomplished before then. Work was begun immediately.

The first problem was to assemble 18,000 gyro-qualified soldiers. Officers and enlisted men who were then assigned to the division were given the opportunity to volunteer for Gyroscope provided they had sufficient time left during their current tour. Others were invited to re-enlist with the guarantee that they would go to Germany with their present units. On November 16, the first volunteers for Gyroscope were accepted into the 8th Division.

By December, the various units in the division were given their geographical assignments in Germany. Goeppingen was designated as the location of the division's headquarters. Ulm, Heilbronn, and Fuerth were assigned to the three infantry regiments - the 13th, the 28th, and the 5th.

Battalions of Division Artillery were stationed with the infantry regiments and at other strategic points. The 41st Tank Battalion was given the southernmost station at Leipheim, and the division's other units were placed so that they could service the "line" outfits most advantageously.

Later in December, it was announced that the 9th Division, which was being replaced by the 8th, would assume the 8th's training mission at Fort Carson. On December 9, a two-man liaison staff from the 9th arrived at Carson to prepare for the arrival of the entire division in the fall.

During December, gyro personnel were informed who would be eligible for concurrent travel of dependents and for government housing. The program for concurrent travel was outlined and the men were told about the excellent living conditions in the government quarters in Germany.

The men of the 8th were oriented in their mission overseas. They were told that as part of the strategic 7th Army, they must achieve a status of high combat readiness even before they depart from the United States. This status would be maintained during the approximately three years that the division would be in Germany. The 8th Division would be right next to the Iron Curtain, ready to meet any aggression at all times.

On February 1, a party of nine high-ranking officers from the 8th left Carson for a two-week tour of Southern Germany to survey the garrison and training areas and to report back to the new commanding general, Maj. General Thomas M. Watlington.

February 1956 was declared "8th Infantry Division Month" in Colorado in an effort to spur enlistments for Operation Gyroscope.

In February, the first group of gyro-bound trainees arrived at Carson. They numbered almost 5,000. Many were draftees and enlistees. Others were men who had transferred from other units to participate in Gyroscope.

On February 17, the 8th Division graduated its last trainees under its old mission and all efforts then swung into the program of training combat-ready soldiers to serve on the frontiers of the free world in Germany. On February 27, six of the divisions units, including the 13th Infantry Regiment, began basic training with the men who would make up those units for the next two or three years.

On March 5, General Watlington addressed several thousand of the division's trainees and stressed that they were not part-time soldiers but were being trained as "professional fighters" for one of the most important jobs in the NATO defense program.

Along with their combat training, the men were given information on the German people. It was stressed that Germany was no longer an occupied country and that the 8th Division would be stationed there as guests of the German government. The men were told that the manner in which they conducted themselves would reflect on their service and their country.

German traffic signs were installed all about Fort Carson in order to familiarize the men with the signs and signals they would be seeing when they went overseas.

Meanwhile the headquarters personnel of the division and its units were wading through mountains of paper work. Thousands of passports for dependents, tens of thousands of inoculations, inspections of equipment that would be taken along or turned over to the 9th, and hundreds of other details that were processed smoothly and efficiently.

May 15 marked an important event in the story of the 8th's Gyroscope movement. On that date the first member of the 8th reported for duty in Germany as part of the advance party of the 41st Tank Battalion.

In June it was announced that members of the 8th who were taking their pre-embarkation leaves in the east would be allowed to report directly to the port of embarkation in New York City instead of coming back to Carson and traveling East with their units. This necessitated the establishment of two detachments in New York by the 8th Division. One was a holding detachment in Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, to receive unaccompanied men when they returned from their leaves. The other was a liaison detachment in Brooklyn's St. George Hotel to house and process the men who reported to the port with their dependents.

On the last Saturday in June, the 8th Division held a farewell review for the citizens in Colorado Springs, Fort Carson's neighboring community. It marked the last time the unit would appear together for several years.

Training continued at a hectic pace and on July 26, the 13th, first infantry regiment to start training, finished its stateside cycle and its men left Carson for their pre-embarkation leaves. For many of these men, who would report directly to the port, this was goodbye to the mountain post.

On August 12, the first trainload of 8th Division soldiers left Carson for New York via troop trains. Three days later they boarded ship and sailed for their new stations in Germany. By August 27, the division's first increment, comprising a third of the men who were gyroing, had left Carson and Operation Gyroscope was well on its way.

When the 41st completed its proficiency tests at Fort Carson, Co. C had scored the highest in both individual and crew testing and "The Rock of the 41st" became more than just a nickname for their 41st Tk. Bn. Co.

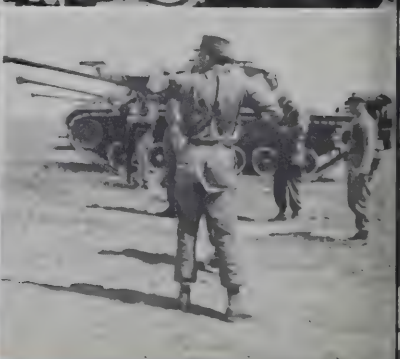

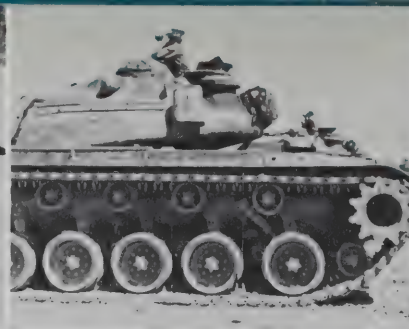

The officer in charge of range firing at Camp Irwin called The Rock, "the best gunnery outfit of the tank companies we have seen go through this training since we've been here."

The unit, proud of its hard-earned reputation, began an all-out effort to retain it. It continued to excel in training, in ordnance inspections, and even in the battalion softball tournament.

Last week a four-foot high rock was presented to the company by the battalion's rear detachment. The trophy, which stands in front of the company's orderly room, bears the name that has been applied to Co. C for the last six months.

Its parent unit was constituted as the 43rd Artillery Regiment of the Coast Artillery Corps in June, 1918. Haussimont, France was the scene of its organization in August of that year. Three years later, it was inactivated Camp Eustis, Va., and the 52nd Coast Artillery Regiment was designated as its active associate. In June, 1924, it was redesignated the 43rd Coast Artillery Regiment. Inactivation of the battalion as the 43rd Regiment came in October, 1933.

Redesignation as the 43rd Battalion occurred in January, 1941, with activation at Fort Jackson, S. C., as an element of the 8th Infantry Division following in June. In October, 1945, inactivation was completed at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. Batteries A and B of the 1st Battalion were reconstituted and consolidated with the 43rd Battalion in June, 1950. Activation occurred at Fort Jackson, S. C., in August of that year.

Antiaircraft Artillery Battalion

The 23rd Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battalion, (AW) (SP), was organized on 28 June 1950 by redesignation of the 777 AAA AW Bn and Battery C, Harbor Defense of New Bedford, formerly known as the 23rd Separate Coast Artillery Battalion.

World War II found the battalion (operating as the 777th AAA AW Bn) serving with distinction in the Campaigns of the Defense of England, Normandy, Northern France and Central Europe. The battalion left the United States on 18 April 1944 and was sent to Membury and Ramsbury, in South Central England. Then it was moved to Ashford, England to aid in the defense against the "buzz bombs". In July 1944, the battalion was attached to the 6th Armored Division. It jumped off with them in Operation "Cobra", the breakout of the Normandy Peninsula, on 25 July 1944. The French Unit Citation was won at the battalion's first important engagement at Avranches on 31 July, 1944. The battalion took part in all campaigns, to include capture of the Brittany Peninsula, the "rat race" across France, the Saar, Ardennes, "The Battle of the Bulge", across the Rhine, and the campaign inside Germany. The greatest triumph came on 2 April 1945 when the battalion shot down 44 enemy planes, the largest number destroyed in one day by any battalion during World War II.

After the war, the 777th had the mission of occupying several different German cities. On 30 June 1946, the 777th AAA AW Bn (SP) was inactivated in Germany.

The battalion was reorganized on 28 June 1950 as the 23rd AAA Bn (AW) (SP) at Fort Jackson, South Carolina. On 15 May 1954 the battalion was transferred to Fort Carson, Colorado along with the 8th Infantry Division. The primary mission since that date has been training, and support of reserve training.

Btry. A, 45th, Adds To Best Laurels

Btry. A, 45th FA Bn., added to its July Best TI&E awards last week with three battalion-level "bests" — barracks, mess and inspection of training records.

Sfc. Grady Griffin is in charge of the barracks and Sfc. Richard Ringo is mess steward.

Friday, July 27, 1956

Btry. C, Holds Best Mess

Btry. C, 45th FA Bn., retained the best mess management and barracks taking the "best" plaque from the second on the battery level.

Slow Down and Live.

Btry. B, 45th, Student Ups GT Score Record 52

Pvt. Matos Gonzales, Btry. B, 45th FA Bn., has topped a trend by TI&E GT class graduates who have been boosting their GT scores by raising his GT score to a record 52 last week.

Increases of 40 points had been the previous top increases but last week's graduates led by Gonzales with a 52 point increase registered 51, 49 and 48-point jumps as well as many increases of more than 30 points.

The six-week courses prepare career soldiers with GT scores below 90 to take their second GT tests in an effort to raise the scores.

Gonzales, a wireman, completed the eleventh grade in high school at Maguez, Puerto Rico, before entering the Army.

56th Has Prince For Ambassador

The 8th Inf Div is going to have a Prince for a goodwill ambassador in Germany.

Prince is the German shepherd dog who flunked out of the Army Dog Training Center at Fort Carson because he was too friendly to be a sentry dog.

Sp2 Clarence (Doc) Watson, a medical aidman with the 56th FA Bn, happened along about that time and adopted Prince.

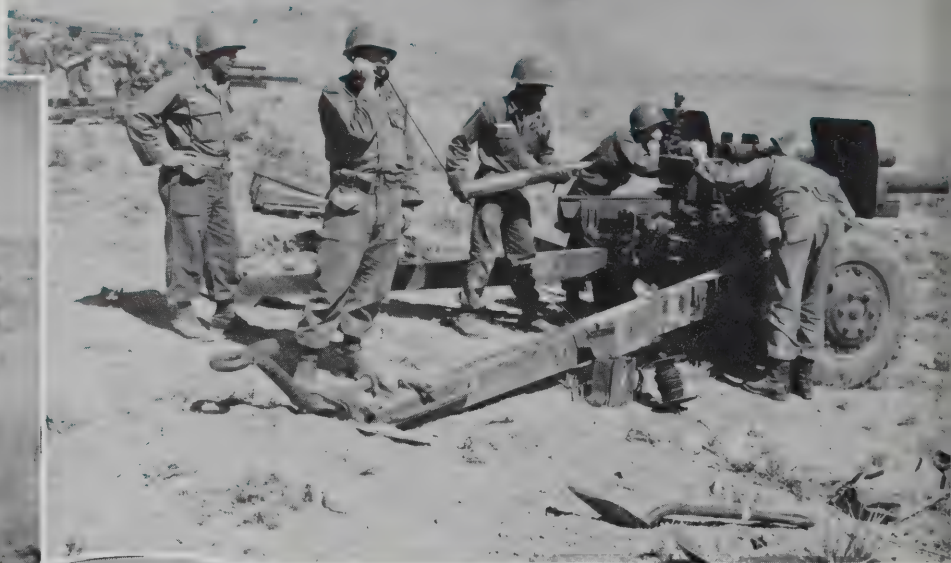

Now Doc is training the big dog to forget his sentry education and be even more friendly.

Prince could never bring himself to attack a man at the center, a requisite for all good sentry dogs.

"But I figure he'll get along just as well in the world by being friendly, if it's his real nature," said Doc of his princely companion.

The dog is going to Germany as a pet, an unofficial goodwill ambassador for the 56th and the division.

Btry. B Leads 28th FA With 93.9 In Btry. Tests

Btry. B, 28th FA Bn. took first place with a score of 94.3% in the battery tests conducted during the week of July 23-28. Composed almost entirely of men who completed their basic training May 26, the batteries had to completely familiarize themselves with and prepare for the tests with men who had no prior artillery experience.

Btry. B had an imposing record in the practice tests, and continued leading in the final tests to nose out Btry. A by 3.6 points.

Btry. B Tops 56th FA In Army Training Tests

Our apologies to the 56th FA Bn. for the omission of two lines in the Army training test result story last week.

The 56th has topped the 8th Div. Arty battalions so far with a 93.97 average. Leading the firing batteries was Btry. B, 1st Lt. Gerald H. Britten, CO, with a 96.7 score and superior rating.

Btry. A, commanded by 1st Lt. Ralph D. Schrenk, scored 94.7 and an excellent rating.

Btry. C, Capt. Millard R. Allen CO, hit 90.5 and an excellent.

Btry. D, 23d AAA Scores High at Bliss

Btry. D, 23d AAA Bn., made an outstanding record in recent tests of the M-42 and M-16 scoring 90.75% of a possible 100 at Fort Bliss, Texas, according to Capt. James J. Donnelly, Btry. D CO.

In their first test since reporting to the 23d for pre-Gyro training, the artillerymen downed seven radio-controlled aircraft and seven flags as well as scoring many hits.

The highest M-16 quadruple mount, .50 cal. machine gun score was 84 of a possible 85% by Sfc. Daniel Pariso's second platoon seventh section which includes Sfc. Charles Passmore, Pvts. Johnnie Werner, Richard Connelly, Carl Reedy, Donald Mason and Guy Miller.

Highest M-42 light anti-aircraft gun score was 81 of a possible 85 by MSgt. T. J. Stafford's first platoon second section which includes Sgt. Sylvester Boekmeir, Pvts. Jay Amburgy, Daryl Shenefiel, Edward Fleming, Stephen Misner, and Bobby Smith.

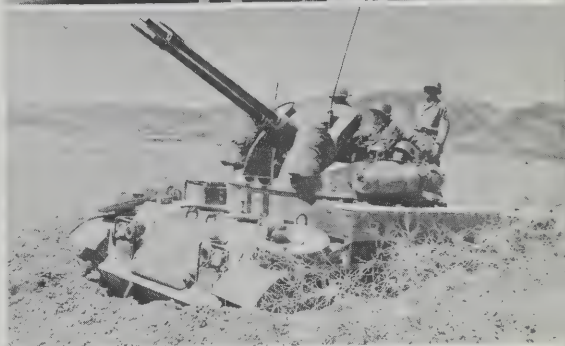

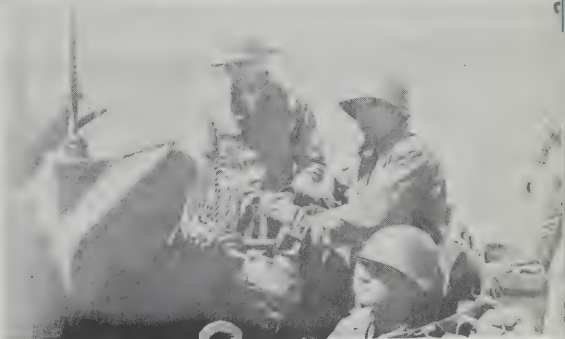

The efficiency of the M-42 section, Capt. Donnelly mentions, resulted in all crew members being mentioned by name in the test report submitted by the test team chiefs.

Btry. A, 45th FA, July Best TI&E

Btry. A, 45th FA Bn., rated the Best TI&E plaque for July making the third "best" for the 45th and the first in more than a year for Btry. A.

First Lt. Gerald E. Forbes is Btry. A, I&E officer and Pvt. Kenneth Crossman, I&E NCO. Crossman took second place in a recent TI&E information instructors' class.

Previous plaques were won twice by Hq. Btry. making the 45th FA Bn. a three-time winner.

43rd FA Bn. Ends Tests

The 43rd Field Battalion, 8th Infantry Division Artillery's first unit to Gyroscope to Germany, climaxed its training with the completion of its Army Training Tests on June 21. The battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. Clayton G. Gagnon, was the first to complete its tests.

The 43rd established an overall average of 92.67% for the three firing batteries. Colonel Gagnon said that coming at the end of 17 weeks of intensive training, the results showed that the men of this battalion have made the transition from civilian to soldier "in a very creditable manner."

Battery C, commanded by Capt. Alfred M. Fiasca, scored 94.7%. Battery B, commanded by Capt. Leon G. Mayo, scored 92.7% and Battery A, commanded by Capt. Alfred R. Knowles, scored 90.6%.

The battalion is now preparing for technical equipment inspections and POM operations.

56th FA Sundust Shares Hole With Rattler on Bivouac

Pvt. Gorman Sundust, Btry. B, 56th FA Bn., shared his foxhole with a rattlesnake while his unit was on field maneuvers at Cottonwood Junction.

Pvt. Sundust had almost finished digging his foxhole, and was preparing to bed down for the night when he heard a rattling sound behind him. He turned and saw a 3 ft. rattlesnake no more than a few inches from his leg.

It seems that the snake whose snakehole was inside the foxhole was also intending to spend the night there. Sundust slowly backed away to a safe distance and started throwing rocks in an attempt to dislodge his unwelcome guest.

The snake took refuge in a nearby cactus. With the aid of one of his buddies, Sundust proceeded to flush the reptile from his hiding place and killed it with their entrenching tools. The snake had seven rattles, which Sundust kept for a souvenir.

Pvt. Sundust is a 19-year-old Maricopa Indian from Laveen, Ariz.

Gyroscope 'Going Home' For 14 in 56th FA Bn.

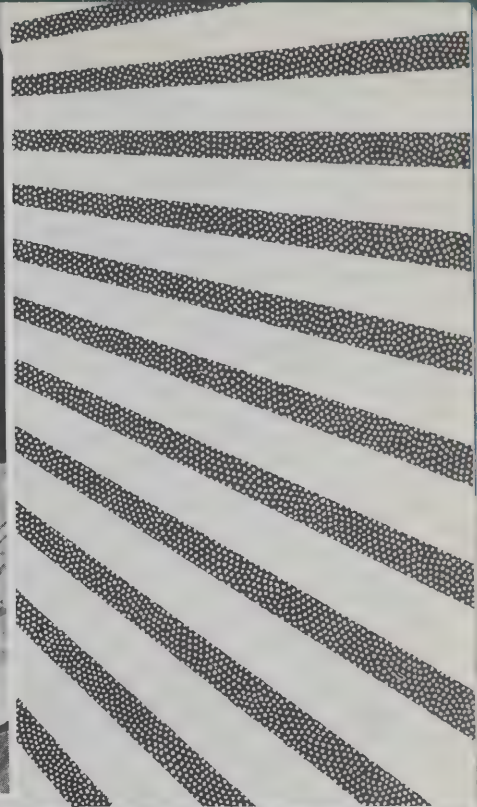

Operation Gyroscope means leaving home and family to many men, but to at least 14 members of the 56th FA Bn. it means going home.

Pvt. Reinhold Stoetzel, who's parents and sister live in Siegen Germany, will be about 250 miles from Schwabach, the 56th's new station.

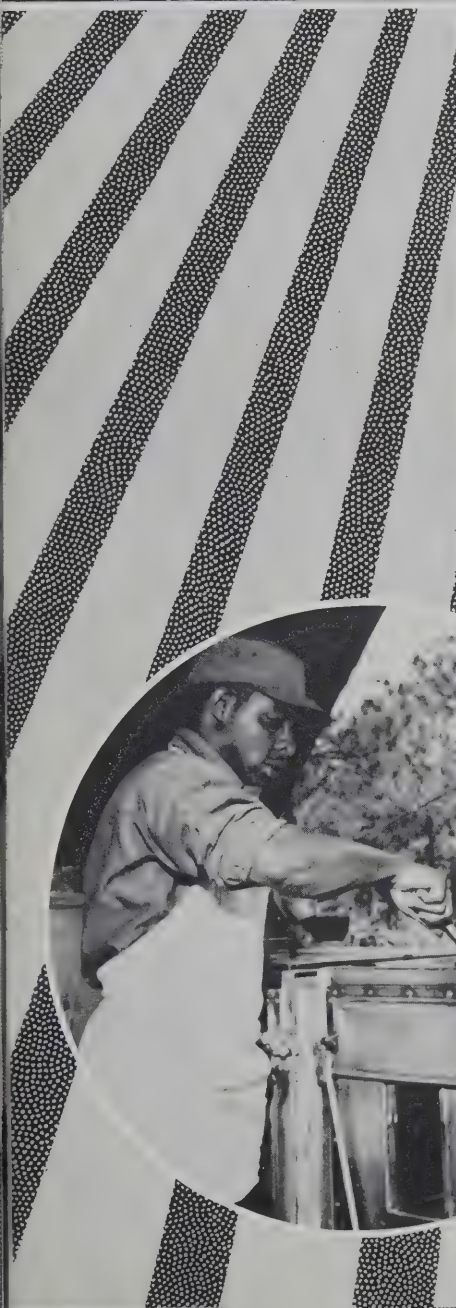

Pvt. Henrich Busch will pass near his home town on the way to O'Brien Barracks. His mother and two sisters live in the small German town of Elm, near Bremerhaven, 400 miles from Schwabach.

Others who will be closer to a home coming include, six men from Italy, two from France, two from Poland, one from England, and Pvt. Paul Demon who will have the longest overland trip home to Alea Argos, Greece.

13th Regt Grid Squad Cut; Headed by Ex-College Stars

The 13th Inf kicks off the 8th Inf Div sports program when its football team takes the field this fall in Germany.

Second Lt Tom Fizzano, former University of Delaware tackle, will coach the "Vicksburgers." He'll be assisted by 2nd Lt Ed Hamilton, former Georgia Tech player.

"A tremendous turnout of 175 players answered our first call last month," said Coach Fizzano. "Since then we have cut down to about 40 men. The final cut to 33 is scheduled after a few scrimmages in Germany."

"Currently, many players are on pre-embarkation leaves so all we're doing is running conditioning exercises. We'll really start banging heads when we get to Germany," he said.

The Vicksburgers will run and pass from the split-T formation. Coach Fizzano promised a wide-open offense with the accent on the quarter-back and his run-or-pass option plays. In the split-T, the quarterback takes the ball and runs along either side of the line. He has the option of handing off into the line, pitching out for an end around, or throwing a pass. The split-T derives its name from the practice of splitting the linemen a little farther apart than in the normal T-formation.

A good possibility to fill the quarterback slot is Pvt Al Fracassa who starred in Michigan State's recent Rose Bowl victory over UCLA.

Fizzano has designated two professional players to act as playing-coaches. Dick Syzmanski, a former All-American from Notre Dame and now property of the Baltimore Colts, is expected to hold down center and line-backer for the Vicksburgers as well as coach.

The other player-coach, Seymour Pollack, former Boston University star and now the property of Pittsburgh Steelers, is expected to play at one of the end positions.

Not wanting to make any pre-season predictions, Lt Fizzano said, "We'll be ready to play good, clean, hard football, and give the other regiments plenty of competition."

Co K, 13th Inf Commended for Fighting June Fire

The United States Department of Agriculture recently recognized the tremendous work of the officers and men of Co K, 13th Inf Regt, who fought a 1000-acre forest fire in the Arapaho National Forest in June.

In a letter to Capt Lawrence R. Scott, company commander, Forest Supervisor George K. Brown commended the men for their outstanding cooperation with the forest service in subduing the three-day fire in Devil's Canyon near Idaho Springs, Colo.

Two platoons from Co K readied themselves in record time after the alert was telephoned to their bivouac area at Ft Carson on the night of June 24. Under police escort, they sped to the scene of the forest fire arriving at 5:30 am for the three-day siege.

Second Lts George S. Bulford and Robert O. Carlson, platoon leaders of the 1st and 2nd platoons, worked closely with the forest rangers in directing their men on the fire lines.

Captain Scott said of his men, "the forester in charge was pleased with the calmness and orderliness with which the men conducted themselves. Every one of those boys was risking injury and I'm proud of the job they did in accomplishing their task."

13th In. Celebrates

Military and athletic prowess dominated the 13th Inf. 158th birthday celebration Thursday highlighted by acceptance of the post baseball trophy by Capt. Harold U. Kelley, coach, from Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Watlington, CG.

Col. Ellis W. Williamson, 13th CO, reviewed the troops and received the baseball trophy.

Even winners were: Co. C, drill-contest without arms; H&H Co., drill with arms; Pvt. Marvin Freeman, Tank Co., pie eating contest; Pvts. Kenneth Kemerling and Thomas Wood, Co. F team, 40-foot egg catching; 3d Bn. out-tugged the 1st Bn., Med. Co. mess hall got the pork in the pik-chasing contest.

Officers led NCOs throughout the softball game.

15 Earn Expert Infantryman Badges in 13th

The 13th Infantry qualified 15 men this week in the requirements for the Expert Infantryman's Badge. Seventy four men have passed the preliminaries.

To be eligible to compete for the EIB, a man must have an excellent rating. In addition, he must score at least 240 in a physical fitness test, qualify in his

Svc. Co., 13th Inf., Uses Golden Rule with Injured Civilian Drivers

Officers and men of Svc. Co., 13th Inf. proved last week that the Golden Rule is followed by Vicksburgers.

On July 12, a Svc. Co. soldier fell asleep at the wheel while driving from Pueblo to Carson, and his car collided with one driven by Harley Betz, Garden City, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Betz and their two young daughters, were on their way to Pueblo when the accident occurred. All received injuries and were taken, along with the injured soldier to Pueblo's Parkview hospital.

The soldier was transferred to Carson's hospital with only slight injuries.

Capt. Lloyd L. Burke, Svc. CO, was informed of the accident, and in turn told other members of the company. Capt. Burke says the idea that something should be done for the family was spontaneous.

A collection was taken and the day after the accident, Capt. Burke and 1st Lt. Jack V. Christman, the former company commander went to Pueblo to visit the family.

They offered assistance in taking care of any insurance or legal matters, after learning that no one was seriously injured.

The money collected was spent partly for flowers and the balance of $24 given to the Betz family.

On July 13, 1st Lt. John P. Jones, Svc. Co. executive officer, visited the family to see if further assistance was needed.

5 13th Men Score 100 In Explosive Disposal

Five men from the 13th Inf. scored 100% in the 8th Div. explosive ordnance disposal school which was held July 17-18-19.

Those achieving the perfect score in the final examination, which consisted of 50 written questions and three practical tests, were: Sfc. Clifton M. Moore, Co. B; Sfc. John Dufour, Co. H; Sfc. Walton P. Davidson, Co. K; Lt. Santi Diruzza, Med. Co.; and Sfc. Walter L. Strader, Co. G.

Capt. Burke received a letter from the attending physician, July 16, stating that members of the family were well on the way to recovery.

Captain Burke explained the company's actions this way:

"We feel that the conduct of each man in this company is the responsibility of every other man. When someone is involved in an unfortunate accident, every effort should be made to ease the burden."

Which, after all, is just another way of putting a phrase that begins, "Do unto others . . ."

6 Vicksburgers Give Blood for Civilian

Six men, from Co. I, 13th Inf., gave blood this week in answer to a request for volunteers made by Sgt. Robert Gallagher, a Co. I squad leader, for a civilian friend.

Sgt. Gallagher's friend, Miss Pauline Zooks, Colorado Springs, underwent a major operation last week. Before the operation she was told at St. Francis Hospital that she would need several transfusions.

The six volunteers were Sgt. Gallagher, Hq. Co.; and Pvts. Lewis Parisi, James McCullough, Melvin Parker, Herbert Armstrong, and John Clarke, all of Co. I.

individual weapon, and cover 12 miles with full field equipment in less than three hours.

After that, the men are tested on various subjects including military courtesy and discipline, first aid, map reading, individual camouflage, field sanitation and military hygiene, demolitions, mines and booby traps, adjustment of artillery and mortar fire, patrolling, signal communication, military intelligence, day and night compass courses, bayonet assault course, and a field proficiency test.

If the man fails any requirement, he fails the entire test.

13th to Train On Troop Ship

The 8th Div's 13th Inf Regt, first major unit to leave for Germany, doesn't plan to let its move bring training to a stop, according to Maj Stanley S. Adams, regimental S3.

"We're going to have a comprehensive training program aboard ship," he said. "It will include physical training, TI&E classes covering information about our area in Germany, and advanced military subjects."

Adams said the 13th had also scheduled classes for dependents to give them general information on aspects of living in Germany they'll be interested in.

"We land in Germany the first week in September, and we'll start training within a day or two. Then on Oct. 15, we go to Hohenfels for two weeks. One of the first things we have to do is have the men fire familiarization on weapons other than their assigned weapons."

The 13th is now undergoing 5th Army POM inspections of records and equipment.

Captain Floyd C. Hiller, asst. S3 commented, "From now until the sailing date, it's going to be drive, drive, drive. Loose ends are beginning to come together and the men are very much aware of the large job facing them. The 5th Army POM team called the morale of the regiment outstanding."

"The past few weeks, units have finished advanced training in map reading, water survival, assault battle drill, air-ground operations and adjustment of artillery and mortar fire."

Hiller said classes in cold weather survival were also part of the training program. Men will have eight hours of cold weather survival orientation before they arrive in Germany and two hours a month while they're there.

"In the midst of all this activity, 85 men will complete their tests for the Expert Infantryman's Badge," continued Hiller.

"Packing and crating is upon us now, too. The first and second battalions have completed theirs and the third battalion is in the process at this moment."

The shipboard training will not be exclusive with the 13th. Gyro Memorandum 3-8 establishes a three-hour daily training program for all division personnel while at sea.

Senator Commends 13th Med. Co. CO

First Lt. Arthur Criswell, CO, Medical Co., 13th Inf., was commended by Sen. William F. Knowland of California in a letter to Col. Ellis W. Williamson, 13th CO.

"I have recently been advised by an old friend . . ." Sen. Knowland wrote, "whose son is one of the recruits at Fort Carson, of the outstanding performance of Lieutenant Criswell . . . in building a high esprit de corps in his unit. 'I wish to add my appreciation for the fine services Lieutenant Criswell is performing.'"

Col. Williamson said Friday that the compliment was a well deserved one.

"In fact, just two weeks ago, I wrote him a letter of commendation because his company received the highest score of any company in the regiment in the command inspections," Col. Williamson said.

"The way he gets things done is typified by the fact that while his company was getting ready for the command inspection, his men attended the baseball games at night.

"And that," Colonel Williamson concluded, "is mighty unusual!"

CG Lauds 13th Inf. On 158th Birthday

Col. Ellis W. Williamson, CO, 13th Inf., received a letter of congratulations this week from Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Watlington, CG, 8th Division on the 13th Inf's 158th anniversary:

The letter said in part: 'On this, your Regiment's 158th Birthday, I send my heartiest congratulations and best wishes.

"Throughout its history it has been an outstanding combat unit, and the fact that it is becoming one again was clearly proved during its recent training period.

"I am sure that General Sherman, General Sheridan and the other commanders under whom the 13th Infantry has served could have been no prouder of the Regiment than you and I are today."

13th Birthday Party Thursday Includes Review, Greased Pig

The 13th Inf Regt will take time out in the midst of pre-Gyrc preparations to celebrate its Organization Day with colorful ceremonies and sporting events.

One of the oldest regiments in the Army, the 13th will be noting its 158th anniversary.

The regiment was formed in 1798 during the presidential administration of John Adams, and since that time, has established an outstanding record with such figures as Civil War Gen W. T.

Sherman who commanded the attack on Vicksburg.

To begin the birthday celebration tomorrow, Col Ellis W. Williamson, CO, will at 2 pm watch the troops pass in review as three L19's fly over the field.

Three-minute competitive free-style platoon drill will follow with entries from all battalions including the provisional battalion and the regimental band.

Members of the winning platoon will be given three-day passes.

The annual softball game between company commanders and first sergeants will be played for five innings beginning at 2:30 pm.

Between-the-innings events will include a chocolate meringue pie-eating contest, egg-tossing at 50 feet, a round-robin rope-pulling contest between the battalions and a struggle by 20 company representatives to corner and catch a greased pig.

The winner in the greased pig contest will not only be allowed to keep the pig, but will be given a three-day pass.

Three-day passes will also be awarded to winners in the other events. Military guests will serve as contest judges and softball game umpires.

A mobile PX truck will be in the area to provide refreshments during the celebration.

Pvt Paul Smith of Hqs Co, 3rd Bn will act as master of ceremonies for the 13th's last Organization Day in the U. S. before moving overseas for three years.

13th Tops All In Regimental Baseball Play

The 13th Infantry Regiment retained its post baseball championship this year through the combined talents of pitcher Cpl. Neil West and the .400 plus hitting of Private Dick Stanford and Booker T. Jackson.

West had a 6-1 record in the Carson regimental league while Stanford and Jackson finished tops among the league's leading hitters with averages of .459 and .444 respectively.

BATTLE HONORS WORLD WAR I

Alsace
Lorraine

St. Mihiel
Meuse-Argonne

MOTTO: None

SHIELD: Azure, a pale wavy argent charged with a fusil gules; on a canton embattled of the second a field gun of the third on a mount vert (for 7th Infantry).

DESCRIPTION: The shield is blue for Infantry. The regiment was formed in June 1917 from the 7th Infantry, which is represented on the canton. It served in World War I in the 5th Infantry Division the insignia of which (the red fusil) is carried both on the shield and in the crest. The wavy pale represents the Meuse River, the crossing of which near Dun in November 1918 was the outstanding operation of the regiment. The lion of the crest is taken from the arms of Montmedy, the nearest place to Dun having a coat of arms.

Headquarters & Headquarters Company 5th Infantry Regiment

SHIELD: Argent, on a fess gules between seven muzzle-loading cannon sable an arrow or, all within a bordure gyronny of 8 vert gules alternating with gyrons of the field.

CREST: On a wreath of the colors, an arm in armor embowed grasping in a mailed hand proper 9 arrows sable and flitted gules.

MOTTO: "I'll try, Sir."

DESCRIPTION: The shield is white (argent), the color of Infantry facings when the regiment was organized. The red fess with arrow commemorates the battle of Tippicanoe; the battle of Lundy's Lane is shown by the seven cannon captured there; and the border of green, white, and red is for the Mexican War. The crest is a modification of the crest of General Nelson A. Miles, who was for many years Colonel of the regiment and who led it in several notable Indian engagements. His crest is an arm in armor grasping an anchor. Nine arrows, one for each Indian campaign, are substituted for the anchor in the regimental crest.
